Our City Comment & discussion

by THOMAS D.

Glendale
Citizens
Sustain Reputation
in Bond Election

THE citizens of Glendale are to be congratulated over the fact that the bond issue for the city schools was voted yesterday. Glendale has never turned down a proposition which was properly presented to it.

We can now move forward with our heads up, knowing that the education of the growing generation will not be neglected. For this money will permit the board of education to provide facilities to take care of the enrollment.

The vote was very light, only 1510 voting out of a registered total of 10,000.

THE school elections most always record a light vote. This is accounted for, in a measure, by the fact that the polling places do not open until 8 in the morning and close at 6 in the evening. A change should be made at once in the school law which specifies the time of opening and closing of the polling places.

It is disfranchising a great many of our citizens. A majority of those who work in Los Angeles cannot wait until 8 in the morning and many of them do not reach Glendale in time to vote in the evening. We do not know of any benefit derived from the present law, and no time should be lost in changing it.

THE Glendale schools, both grammar and high, are considered as fine as to be found anywhere, the only handicap being the extremely crowded conditions, caused by the fast growth of our city. The enrollment in the grade schools now is 4068 and in the high school 1872, with an additional enrollment of 924 in the high night school.

The building program of the Glendale schools now under way, or provided for by the bond issue passed yesterday, assures the newcomers of ample educational facilities for taking care of their children.

MOTOR BUS FIGHT REACHES CITY COUNCIL

Pacific Electric and C. D.
Gulick Tangle at Meeting

The Pacific Electric company and C. D. Gulick have thrown their hats in the ring. The Pacific Electric is trying to secure a franchise for extensions to its present motor bus system. Mr. Gulick has protested against these extensions being allowed, and at the same time has applied for a permit to establish a complete motor bus system over the leading streets of Glendale.

When Mr. Gulick appeared before the council Thursday night asking for such a permit he was instructed to make his application in writing, stating, as nearly as possible the exact streets that he proposed to run over.

Mr. Wilkey, of the firm of Edwards & Wilkey, along with a representative of the Pacific Electric railway, appeared before the board Thursday night and asked that the hearing on that concern's application be held without delay. This was set for next Monday night.

Councilman Stephenson suggested that Mr. Gulick have his application in by that time so that the hearing of both propositions can be held at the same time.

VITAL QUESTIONS TO BE ON BALLOT AT CITY ELECTION APRIL 10

Besides Election of Two Councilmen, Board of Education Members, Amendments to Charter to Be Submitted to Voters

SALE OF LAND TO LOCAL AMERICAN LEGION

Matter of Payment for Electricity for Ornamental Lights to Be Disposed of by the Citizens of the City Themselves

Questions vital to this city will be decided at the election on April 10. These will include the election of two councilmen, two members of the board of education, the questions of adopting five amendments to the city charter, the matter of the sale of property to the American Legion and the question as to whether the cost of electricity for ornamental street lighting shall come out of the general fund.

The matter of whether or not the cost of electricity for ornamental lighting systems, in excess of the expense of ordinary street lighting, shall be paid out of the general taxes or by the owners of the property fronting on the streets along which the lights are run, will be put squarely before the voters of this city at this election, according to an announcement made by the Glendale council Thursday night.

GLENDALE PRESS SUGGESTION IS ENDORSED

Appoint Committee to Get Together With the
C. of C.

At the very successful luncheon and business session of the Glendale Advancement Association Wednesday noon at the Harriet Mae Tea Room, unexpected endorsement was given the suggestion made some time ago by the Glendale Press that the local Chamber of Commerce be reorganized to the extent of having its directorate composed of representatives of the various civic organizations of the city and thus become a clearing house for their common problems and a rallying point where all could boost together.

The endorsement came from Dr. Charles A. Stuart, of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce and grew out of the motion by Secretary Herman Nelson that a committee be appointed by the president to draft constitution and by-laws to govern the policy of the association and make provision for its financial support, inasmuch as it had sprung into being spontaneously with no beginning nor end to its year, the terms of its officials, or the periods covered by its dues.

The motion carried and President Inglede appointed as the committee Messrs. Truitt, Mercer and Brown. In supporting Mr. Nelson's proposition Dr. Stuart advised that the committee keep in mind the suggestions embodied in the editorial of Captain Thomas D. Watson in the Glendale Daily Press in its reconstruction work and take into consideration the possible solidification in bonds of affiliation with the Chamber of Commerce of all these outside organizations.

FERRY'S MULES ARE PROTESTED

City Manager Reeves and Chief of Police Fraser were instructed by the city council Thursday night to continue investigations into the complaint of some residents on East Acacia avenue on condition of property owned by Peter L. Ferry, as a result of Mr. Ferry's statement, that what the complainants wanted was the removal of Mr. Ferry's mules.

Earlier in the evening the protestants appeared before the council and were informed by the council members that the city attorney had been instructed to draft an ordinance which would limit the number of horses, mules, cows, pigs, etc., that might be kept by anyone in Glendale.

COUNCIL AMENDS SALARY ORDINANCE

An amendment to the salary ordinance was adopted by the Glendale city council Thursday night. This will place the salaries of the employees of the building department as follows:

- One superintendent of building, $200 per month.
- One deputy clerk, $150 per month.
- Three assistant superintendents, $160 per month.
- One utility assistant to the superintendent of building, $145 per month.

CHOW TO BE SERVED AT LEGION POST ON FRIDAY

The regular meeting of Glendale post of the American Legion will be held Friday night at the Legion hall, 610 East Broadway. State Commander Seth Millington of the state of California will be present. All of the lodges in the neighboring cities, including Pomona, Eagle Rock, Burbank, Tujunga, Inglewood and vicinity are invited to come. Chow will be served. Chalmers Day is the president of the local chapter. There will be initiation.

CITY PARK PURCHASES APPROVED

Advancement Association
Goes on Record in Approval of Council

At the meeting of the Glendale Advancement Association Wednesday noon it again went on record as unanimously endorsing the purchase of the 33 acres dedicated by the city council to airport purposes and also to water development, in response to an eloquent plea made by Dr. T. C. Young at whose suggestion the first endorsement was made.

The doctor called attention to his long residence in Glendale and to the fact that the structure in which he has offices is now the oldest business building in the city.

Charles Stanley moved that the association pass a resolution "endorsing the aviation field," saying: "A man must be very blind indeed to lose sight of such advertising. I cannot see why any man of ordinary intellect cannot see this thing right."

Mr. T. C. Young expressed the opinion that the resolution should include Verdugo Park also.

Dr. Russell said: "I think it should go to the attorney of the city council, Mr. Shaw. To send it direct to the judge might prejudice him against the case."

Herman Nelson seconded the motion of Mr. Stanley, saying "I hope it will pass unanimously. The airport was a good buy from a financial standpoint. I, myself, and a good many others would like to buy that property at the price the city is offering. We can bargain. Private interests could make money on the proposition if they were to get it, but of course it should be held by the city. In a short time it will be proved to be worth a great many times more to the city than we can imagine at this time. The city is going forward and a condition of this kind will do more toward retarding progress than anything else we could do. We should stamp it out if it is a possible thing."

The motion made by Mr. Stanley and seconded by Mr. Nelson was then put, and as stated, carried unanimously.

P. E. BUS HEARING WILL BE HELD MARCH 22

The hearing on the granting of a franchise to the Pacific Electric for the extension of its present bus line beyond its terminus, both to the east and to the west, will be heard next Thursday night, according to a decision of the Glendale council.

This action was taken on request of Mr. Wilkey, of the firm of Edwards & Wilkey, one of the prominent real estate firms in Glendale. Mr. Birmingham of the Pacific Electric stated that that company is now rearranging its time schedule so as to give Glendale a 15-minute service and Burbank a 30-minute service, from Los Angeles.

TO IMPROVE SIDES OF COLORADO FIRST

The center of West Colorado will not be improved at the same time as the sides of that thoroughfare, according to an announcement made by the Glendale city council Thursday night.

The sides of this street will be paved with a permanent improvement and the center of the roadway will remain as at present in order that additional expense may not be borne by the residents along that street when sewers are laid. It was stated by the city engineer that it will take about 90 days before work can be started after proceedings are commenced.

POSTAL CUT PROTESTED BY ROTARY

Wires Congressman Lineberger to Get Into Action

BOY WEEK PROGRAM

Scout Camp Site Is Explained to Members
by Al Eastman

The matter of the recent cutting down of appropriations by the post-office department at Washington and its effect on the postoffice situation in Glendale was brought before the attention of the members of the Rotary club at its meeting yesterday by Dan Kelly. A motion was passed that a telegram be sent to Congressman Lineberger regarding the situation in Glendale. A telegram from the congressman which said the cut was necessary was read.

Owen Emery, chairman of boys' work committee, announced boys' week, which is held by all the Rotary clubs throughout the country from April 29 to May 5. The national program for that week includes:

Sunday, April 29—Boys' day in churches.
Monday, April 30—Boys' day in schools.

Tuesday, May 1—Boys' loyalty day and boys' loyalty parade.

Wednesday, May 2—Boys' day in entertainment and athletics.

Thursday, May 3—Boys' day in industry.

Friday, May 4—Boys' days at home.

Saturday, May 5—Boys' day out of doors.

Al Eastman, France Henry and Dick White spoke of the proposed boys' camp site which the local Boy Scouts council is endeavoring to purchase. It consists of 80 acres and is located in Haines canyon, back of Tujunga. It is proposed to make this site a permanent camp if arrangements can be made to purchase it.

Ed Hewitt gave a short talk on the school bond election and urged all Rotarians to go to the polls and vote.

Among the visiting Rotarians present were D. H. Fry of Los Angeles, Herb. Diehl of Muskegon, Okla., Fred R. Harris and A. D. Wallabon of Pasadena, J. E. Brown of Edmonton, Canada, Mitchell Harris of Olympia, Jim Shelton of Los Angeles, Edmond G. Merrill of Los Angeles, G. W. Byers of Champaign, Ill., and Sy Smith, district manager of the Standard Oil Co.

DOG ORDINANCE TO BE PUT IN FORCE

City Council Decides to Act on Appeal of a Parent

In response to a plea on behalf of the children of Glendale, made by C. L. Brenkman, electrician, of 1524 South San Fernando road, whose 5-year-old boy was bitten by a dog at the corner of Brand and Harvard a day or so ago, the city council decided at its meeting Thursday night to "clarify the lid down" on the stray dogs of Glendale.

On motion of Councilman Stephenson, Chief of Police Fraser was instructed to enforce to the letter the dog ordinance that is now on the statute books of the city.

This ordinance requires that all dogs found running the streets, alleys, highways, or vacant lots of the city regardless of whether they carry city license tags shall be picked up and killed. The dog in the automobile and the animal on a leash also come under this ordinance.

This ordinance does not provide for the animal, after being picked up, being confined in the city pound for any number of days, but simply states that after being picked up it shall be killed in a humane manner.

Chief Fraser stated this morning that he is making plans for the strict enforcement of this ordinance, and that just as quickly as men can be secured for this purpose they will be put on the job. All dogs, regardless of who owns them, if found on the streets, will be killed.

Women's Label League to Stage St. Patrick's Dance

The dance to be given in Odd Fellows' hall, Saturday night by the Women's Label League, No. 400, promises to be a big affair, and a great crowd and a good time is assured.

Many Glendale merchants have donated prizes for the occasion to be given for dancing and cards, and other stunts will be pulled off in keeping with St. Patrick's Day. The committee of ladies in charge have been working hard the past week and state that they have been aided by many merchants and others in their efforts to give the biggest ball of the year.

$500,000 SCHOOL BONDS VOTED BY GLENDALE TO MEET PRESENT CONDITION

Total of 1500 Ballots Cast in the Election Gives the Required Two-thirds With Small Margin in Excess, Because of Over-confidence

NEGATIVE VOTE ON THE BOND ISSUE IS 486

Lightness of the Balloting Is Due to Neglect of Citizens to Make Sure of Passage, Says Superintendent
Richardson D. White

The final count of votes cast at the election held Thursday to register the will of the people for or against a bond issue of $500,000 to provide additional facilities in the congested grade schools showed that the bonds carried by a majority which was 53 votes in excess of the required two-thirds.

The total affirmative vote was 1025, the negative vote 486.

This was distributed as follows:
Glendale avenue intermediate: 351 for, 131 against.
Central avenue: 230 for, 89 against.
Wilson avenue: 444 for, 266 against.

Superintendent Richardson D. White explains the meagre vote of 1510 in a city in which 10,000 voters have been registered as the false security of friends of the schools, who have argued that the bonds would carry anyway because of the almost universal expression in their favor. Therefore they did not take the trouble to go to the polls. The opposition vote, on the contrary, was all recorded, and the fact that it was so small is cause for congratulation.

Mr. White states that under the provisions of the state law the vote must be officially canvassed by the board of education next Thursday at 1 p. m.

Before the money will be available for the letting of contracts the bonds must be passed upon by an expert, must be advertised and sold. This will consume from 60 to 90 days, i. e., it may be the middle of June before the board can make a real start.

However, it is allowed under the law the same authority to employ a certified architect that it has to employ a certified teacher. It can therefore confer with architects who may be willing to do some preliminary work in the preparation of sketches before the board is in a position to enter into a contract.

The bonds will bear 5 per cent interest, the board having been advised that securities at that figure can now be floated. Had the interest been made 6 per cent the premium would have been larger, but the board did not feel justified in saddling the additional burden on the taxpayers of the district which the extra 1 per cent would entail.

AIR RODEO IS STARTED WITH RUSH

Contest for Queen Brings Forth Many Candidates in the City

The contest for queen of the air rodeo started with a rush this morning. Several candidates were entered and the selling of tickets began. The young lady of Glendale selling the most tickets between now and Saturday will be declared the queen of the air rodeo. Information with regard to this queen race is being dispensed at the Glendale chamber of commerce.

It is planned to have the finest and fastest group of airplanes and the most efficient bunch of flyers in the country here on Saturday that has ever been assembled in the west. Between 50 and 75 planes will be on the Glendale airport, it is declared, thus giving the people of Glendale and the entire section of Southern California an opportunity of seeing the most modern machines in the world in action. It is planned to have all of these machines in the air simultaneously several times during the day, one of the features being a parade over Glendale and the adjacent territory.

WRECKED AUTO FOUND

An abandoned, wrecked coupe was found at 5:20 o'clock this morning at the corner of San Fernando and Windsor by Officers Baugh and Hedrick. When found the car was on its side and was badly smashed. There was no registration card in the car to show to whom it belonged.

tend Conference of Teachers' Ass'n.

George Lockwood, of the Manual Arts Department of Glendale High left on the Owl Thursday night to attend the conference being held in Oakland today and tomorrow under the auspices of the Women's Joint Educational Conference and the California Teachers' Association to decide on methods of presenting the case of the schools of California in the hearing on the educational part of Governor Richardson's budget which will start at Sacramento Monday. Mr. Lockwood goes as the delegate of the high school teachers' club.

Mr. Lockwood is a member of the legislative committee of the California Teachers' Association Southern Section, and is deeply interested in the matter, and well posted.

He will also execute a commission entrusted to him by Principal George U. Moyse. One of the big items on the program clock contract for the new Glendale High buildings has represented that his concern secured contracts for supplying two of the new high schools and some junior high schools in Oakland. Mr. Lockwood will visit the offices of the Board of Education to ascertain for what reasons the contract was granted and what points of superiority those clocks possess over other systems.

Elliott B. Wyman will represent the Glendale City Teachers' Association at a meeting which is being held today and tomorrow in Oakland by the Women's Joint Educational Conference and the California Teachers' Association.

He is a resident of Casa Verdugo and a Los Angeles business man connected with the Union Limb company of that city. Mrs. Wyman is an active P. T. A. worker.

IRISH IRREGULARS PLAN DRASTIC REACTION

To Shoot All Officials on Sight Is the New Order Sent Out

[By Associated Press]
DUBLIN, March 16.—A document found in a raid in this city on March 7, reveals startling plans for the destruction of residences and a campaign of shooting on sight.
"To meet the desperate and barbarous methods being adopted by the enemy to destroy the government," the document said, "the republican army's general headquarters has decided to amend and in some cases make more drastic the action ordered in recent general orders to commandants.
"Some of these orders have been cancelled and the action directed in them embodied in a new order which will come into effect as further executions by the enemy are carried out in the area after this date."
Among those mentioned as liable to be shot on sight are members of the Free State parliament, members of all ranks, judges, legal advisors and the proprietors and directors of the hostile press in Ireland and the senior officials employed by the same, such as editors, sub-editors and leading writers in papers where it is known that their officials are hostile.

DARKEST RUSSIA HAS QUANT IDEA OF AMERICA

Finds Villagers Who Believe We Use Reverse Motion

[By Associated Press]
MOSCOW, March 16.—A tribe so primitive that it believes Americans live on the bottom of the world and are therefore in darkness, has been found in the mountain villages of the Daghestan by Dr. F. A. Golder of the Hoover Foundation.
Dr. Golder said upon his return here, that the Americans do their plowing while walking upside down with oxen, to whose horns candles are tied. Believing that the world is a table shaped with themselves on its top, they feel that the Americans are indeed unfortunate because they are compelled to live in eternal night.
Dr. Golder said that in many of the villages delegations greeted him as a man from the world below.
Some were anxious to know how Americans managed to get about. One old gray beard, sorely perplexed by what seemed to him an unsolved riddle, finally came to the conclusion that inasmuch as Americans are wonderful people, they have undoubtedly taken a lesson from the fly and learned to walk upside down.
"They thought they arrived by way of a hole in the ground, the ladder to which is kept by the czar of Moscow," Dr. Golder asserted. These people still make fire with flint and steel and use stone hammers and shepherd's pipes. Justice is administered through trial by ordeal. The men, who are of remarkable physique, go about armed to the teeth for they are feudish. The families live in stone huts in the practically valleyless mountains.
Although the people are Moslems, the women are not veiled and because of the present shortage of cotton cloth their only clothing consists of simple sheepskin coats.
"They nearly overwhelmed me with hospitality," Dr. Golder said, "appointing as my special guard a one-eyed bandit who had thirty-five notches in his war club. He would not let me out of his sight."
As a result of Dr. Golder's visit into this unfrequented region, the American Relief administration has sent food to 10,000 children in the mountain villages where starvation is general. William Driscoll has gone to Daghestan to take charge of the operations.

STORM DAMAGE INCREASES IN MIDDLE WEST

Lower Mississippi Valley Is Stricken by Moving Centers

[By Associated Press]
CHICAGO, March 16.—The north-eastward march of the two storms from the west, one from the northern Rocky mountain region brought relief to the upper Mississippi valley but destruction to the lower Mississippi valley today.
The storm that centered over New Mexico, Thursday, on its eastward sweep, was marked by death and destruction as it crossed northern Mississippi last night. At Lambert, Miss., four negroes were reported killed. Virtually the entire town of Savage, Miss., was reported destroyed, where 25 persons were blown into the Cold Water river. Eight were reported killed and fifty injured in this storm area.
Other towns in the vicinity were without lines of communication and the damage in that section for that reason had not been checked early today.
Relief parties were making for the stricken area.
The storm in the upper valley left Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois and Missouri partially covered by snow. In some portions of those states it was reported at a depth of more than one foot.
In Lane county, Kansas, the snow was said to be two feet deep, while La Crosse and Scott City, Kansas, reported 12 and 10 inches respectively.
Gales of 52 miles an hour, swept across a portion of Texas and carried the severest blizzard of the year into the Pan Handle. The high winds were felt at Fort Worth, Galveston, Palestine, Corpus Christi, Texas.
DODGE NO GAMBLER
[By Associated Press]
DETROIT, Mich., March 16.—Horace H. Dodge is anxious to pit his foot against the fast of Gar Wood's, but has declined an offer from Wood for a race that involved $500,000 side bet, it was announced today. In a telegram to Charles F. ## NEW HOSPITAL FOR VETERANS IS HUGE

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., March 16.—Sixty pounds of blueprints in the safe of the chamber of commerce here tell the story of the plan of the federal government to start early construction of a million and a half dollar hospital for former service men suffering from nervous and mental diseases.
On the open spaces west of here where Camp Custer sprang into a great cantonment, the hospital, with its thirty buildings, will spread over 500 acres. It is one of five for which congress appropriated $18,000,000. The hospital building program is under the direction of the Veterans' bureau.
Two miles east of the government hospital site is located the American Legion Roosevelt hospital for the care of tubercular former service men, with a capacity of 400 patients. The Veterans' Bureau hospital will have facilities for the treatment of 500 patients.
The government hospital unit will be built around what the blueprints call the "main building"—a commodious two-story structure, winged, with general wards on one side and wards for "disturbed" patients on the other. Directors' offices, rooms for various officers, dining rooms, operating rooms, electro-therapy, electro-cardiograph, autopsy and dental rooms are in this building, as well as quarters for specialist treatment and minor surgery.
At the west end of the hospital group will be located the cottage for tubercular patients, equipped with sleeping porches and the most modern methods of treating this disease.
The recreation building will contain an auditorium to seat 400 persons, with a stage and projection room for motion pictures. Card and billiard rooms will open off the main lobby.
There is a group of buildings for "continued treatment" cases, containing large day rooms on the first floor with wards above. Three separate buildings will provide accommodations for nurses, female attendants and male attendants. There will be separate structures for the vocational training shops, garage and repair shops.

VLADIVOSTOK STARVING

VLADIVOSTOK, March 16.—Food taxes have not been a success in this district, although the authorities are declaring that the collection of taxes has been very satisfactory. The government has no money to buy food produce in large quantities abroad, and one of the leading commissars has declared that if things do not improve the district is in danger of famine this year.
Soldiers of the Red Army are going from house to house begging for food, although this is strictly forbidden by the army regulations. The men complain that they get only one and a half pounds of bread daily and sometimes soup made of fish. They are supposed to get a salary of 25 kopecks a day, but many of them have not been paid more than three months.

Jonah of the Air He'll Stay on Ground

[By Associated Press]
LOS ANGELES, March 16.—Elmer Goss declared today that he is an aerial Jonah and hereafter will stay on the ground. For the sixth time a fellow workman crashed to the ground, while each time Goss from the same scaffold averted injury to himself while five of the fellow workers met death.

and the sixth today is suffering from a fractured skull. The last fatal accident to a companion of the window-washer was March 5, when A. Polski and Goss fell six stories and Polski died.

Today the scaffolding swayed and John Bassett, fellow worker, fell three stories while Goss saved himself by grasping a rope. Assistant Bassett to the hospital, he announced he would look for a job on the ground to see if he can break the Jonah spell.

Comedy Vote Nearly Nominates Comedian

[By Associated Press]
PASADENA, March 16.—Charlie Chaplin yesterday lost a chance to run in the city election for city director here by one vote. If he had received a single additional ballot he would be on the ticket April 5. Yesterday Pasadenaans went to the polls to vote in the primary for city directors. There was no opposition to Hiram Wadsworth, Franklin Thomas and John H. Simpson, so wages writing names on ballots have made it mandatory to put the names of Henry Dickson and Benjamin Strange on the ballot. Charlie Chaplin's vote was one less than received by Dickson and Strange, otherwise it would have been necessary to submit his name at the city election April 5.

Out of a total registration of 23,052, only 877 votes were cast.

Placing a photograph on the diningroom table, Mrs. Ravenyelp said to her husband: "I have an odd record here. Henny, and I want to see if you can guess what it is."

When a weird succession of sounds began to come from the horn of the instrument Ravenyelp knitted his brows and tried to identify the sounds. "It's a saw ploughing through a knot," he ventured. "Guess again," said Mrs. Ravenyelp.

"A trombone in pain."
"No."
"An owl with its toes in a trap," he asked.

Smiling grimly, Mrs. Ravenyelp shook her head. "but as a last guess I'll say it sounds very much like a siren whistle with the pip."

"I will agree that it's as bad as all you have named," Mrs. Ravenyelp remarked, "and hope it will save a lot of argument in the future."
"But what is it?" insisted Ravenyelp.

"It's a record I made in the bedroom the other night," replied Mrs. Ravenyelp, "to prove that you really do snore in your sleep and to let you know just how awful it sounds."

AGED WIDOW OF VETERAN GAINS PENSION

Mrs. Houdyshel Announces Award to Mrs. Mary Robinson, Eagle Rock

Mrs. Priscilla Houdyshel, who for many years served the local Women's Relief Corps as treasurer, and who has always been active in its work, particularly in aiding to secure pensions due, has just been gratified by the receipt of a telegram from Washington stating that a pension has been granted Mrs. Mary Robinson of Eagle Rock, the 80-year-old widow of a veteran of the Civil war who died about 15 months ago. Since that date she has been penniless except for the small home she owns. Several unsuccessful attempts had been made to secure the pension before Mrs. Houdyshel took hold of the matter and succeeded after great effort in obtaining the evidence required to sustain her claim. It will amount to $30 a month, and with the back pay due her and an unpaid balance due her husband, will aggregate about $500 much needed money.

Richardson D. White goes to Occidental College tonight to act as judge in a debate between a team of that institution and one from the University of Southern California.

He sat on the banks of a gentle stream, waiting for a bite. Surely the float was bobbing up and down. Yes, it must be a fourteen-pounder at least! He pulled in his line, and found—nothing.

Several times that day the same thing happened. He had a dull time until, in making another cast, the hook caught in the back of his coat. He went through more evolutions than an expert contortionist to reach that hook. He even tried to rub it out against a tree, but a smart-jab in the small of the back soon stopped that.

At last, perspiring and annoyed, he started in search of some one to extricate it. Five miles he tramped before espying a human being.

"Here, my good man," he called out to a farm hand, "will you be so kind as to take that hook out of the small of my back? I've walked miles and miles trying to find some one to pull the thing out."

"Of course I will, sir," said the astonished farm hand, "but why on earth couldn't ye take yer coat off?"

And occasionally there is watered stock in the dry goods business.

DAILY PRESS

WANT ADS PAY!

HARD MONEY IS BOOTLEG IN GERMANY

By GUS M. OEHM

United Press Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, March 16 (By mail to the United Press).—"Extra! The dollar quotation of the day. Extra! New slump in the mark!" While American newsmen cry their exultations on the day's biggest news, the Louisiana, Ky Klux or the European "war" situations, the German newsmen appeal daily to the public interest by making the most direct appeal to the buyer's pocketbook—the quotation of the dollar in marks.

Germans everywhere are interested in how the dollar is quoted in marks, because Germans everywhere own dollars, English pounds, Argentine pesos and all sorts of comparatively stable foreign currency.

Nobody in Germany—or anywhere else for that matter—wants to retain mark notes very long. Back in July a 500-mark note was worth $1 and would buy a dollar's worth of goods on the German market. At this writing a 500-mark note is worth less than two cents and buys about two cents' worth in German stores.

So it is easy to understand why a German who has any inclination to save, wants to save something other than marks. If, in July, the German turned his 500 marks into an American dollar, he is able now to turn it into thousands of marks and buy practically as much as he could with his 500 back in July.

The German government, taking cognizance of this fact, realized that much speculation was going on and, some time ago, issued anti-speculation regulations. This merely took speculation out of legal public places and put it on an illegal "bootlegging" basis. The German still buys dollars and sells them at a profit. He does it through friends, who have dollars to sell, through banking houses and concerns who take the regulations with a grain of salt and through relatives and associates in foreign countries.

Germany is flooded with foreign currency which passes for exchange of goods at the prevailing rates of exchange. An American buying in a German store often for more or less is required to pay in dollars or pounds. This saves the merchant the trouble and expense of changing marks into dollars.

The natural question—what becomes of all the paper money German prints—is partly answered by the enlarged amount of money a German must carry around. Back in July 100 marks would buy a meal at an average quick lunch. Now it takes from five to ten thousand or more. The German's pocketbook bulges with notes, his coat and trousers' pockets carry a surplus and he replenishes his stock each morning before venturing forth into the day's work. The average man can carry only enough notes for one or two days' expenses—to carry more would involve too bulky a bundle.

The money, printed on cheap paper, naturally wears out rapidly and the smaller notes are replaced by larger ones. Whereas in July one, two, five and ten mark notes still had some value, especially as change, notes of this denomination today are seldom seen, except when the presses get behind on the printing of big notes and the market is flooded with smaller denominations from the reserve.

What the situation may be by next July is hard to say. The government has just started printing 50,000 and 100,000 mark notes, which is freely circulated, will greatly facilitate day-by-day purchasing. However, if the mark continues to fall and 100,000 marks equal a dollar, the process must be repeated and bigger and bulkier notes than ever printed.

And in the meantime, the German public and the American colony living in Germany, wonder where the whole thing is going to end.

Easy Lessons in Auction Bridge

Copyright 1923 by Hoyle, Jr.

Article No. 24

Two-Suit Hands

A Two-suit hand is one that has two suits, each of which contains at least five cards. Such hands are popularly termed "Two-Suits," and are rated the strongest hands that can be held. When played at the best suit bid of the combined hands, they will average to be worth from two to four tricks more than if played at No Trump. The reason for such result is apparent. When the better of two long suits for the combined hands has been determined by proper bidding, that suit should control the trump situation and therefore make it possible to establish the other five-card suit. Such tactics produce remarkable results with hands apparently weaker than the average No Trump, and for that reason the two-suit is preferred by all experts as the strongest hand that can be held at the Auction table. It should be apparent, therefore, that the proper bidding of two-suit hands is most important in order to ascertain which of the two suits is the better for the combined hands.

The following represent the proper bidding of two-suits:

First: With two suits of fairly equal strength and length, both of which are sound original suit bids, bid the higher valued suit on the first round, the other on the second round of bidding. The object of this rule is to permit partner to make a choice of the suit he prefers without increasing the contract. For example, the dealer holds the following:

Hearts—A, K, 7, 6, 2
 Clubs—10, 8
 Diamonds—K, Q, J, 6, 4
 Spades—7

He should first bid Spades, the higher valued suit, and show the Hearts on the next round. In case the Heart suit is longer, he should first bid Hearts and then show the Spades. Such bidding would warn partner of the marked preference for the Heart suit. For example:

Hearts—A, K, 8, 7, 6, 2
 Clubs—10
 Diamonds—7
 Spades—K, Q, J, 6, 4

Also note that if a player bids a suit on the first round, his partner assists on the bid, he should not bid his other suit. The reason for this is that such information is of too much value to opponents. The only exception to this rule occurs when a player bids a minor suit on the first round and has a long weak major suit to show on the second round. Under such conditions player should bid the major suit even though his partner has assisted his minor suit bid. For example:

Hearts—Q, 9, 7, 6, 2
 Clubs—A, K, 7, 6, 2
 Diamonds—10, 8
 Spades—7

With the foregoing hand the dealer should first bid one Club, as the Heart suit is not a sound original bid, and bid the Hearts on the second round, whether or not his partner has assisted the Club bid.

Second: With a two-suit hand and a No Trump bid by partner, always overbid with one of the two suits, preferring the major suits to the minor. This point already has been covered in the article on "Take-Outs" and that article should now be re-read and studied in connection with this one.

Third: If partner has bid a suit, and a player holds a two-suit, he should show both suits unless holding at least one trick better than average support for partner's bid. If, after both suits have been bid, partner re-bids his own suit, let him have the bid.

Fourth: If a player has bid two suits, it is the duty of his partner to show preference at the first opportunity, even though he cannot assist either bid. For example, suppose dealer has bid one Spade and two Hearts, second on hand passes the latter bid, and dealer's partner holds the following:

Hearts—4, 2
 Clubs—10, 9, 7, 6
 Diamonds—K, Q, J, 6, 4, 2
 Spades—10, 7, 6

Latter should bid two Spades to show preference for one of the two suits bid by partner is most important.

Fifth: When opponents have bid two suits, the other two players should be very alert to save game. They should know that one of their opponents has at least ten cards in two suits and that his losing cards, if any, are in the other two suits. These two suits should govern both their bidding and play.

PLAN BETTER

MACHINERY FOR

WEEVIL WAR

[By Associated Press]

CHICAGO, March 16.—Plans to defeat the boll weevil and help restore prosperity to southern farmers by speeding up of their farming system, were outlined here today by the National Institute of Progressive Farming.

The institute believes, after an investigation of the evil that yearly causes so much loss to cotton growers, that the best means of combatting it is in the introduction of farm machinery to replace what it terms "one-mule-and-a-colored-hand-system." Co-operation with agricultural colleges and extension stations, county agents, chambers of commerce and agricultural high schools is planned in introducing higher mechanical standards.

"Prof. G. H. Alford, formerly with the U. S. Department of Agriculture and a prominent agriculturist, has summed up the boll weevil problem by saying that while it can not be eliminated, it is possible to defeat it with intensive cultivation."

"Early fall plowing buries the pests before cool weather drives them off the fields to seek hibernating quarters 'for the winter,' he says. Cotton yields per acre have been downward for the last sixteen years, last year being the lowest recorded. Larger farms and plantations, manned with fewer and more highly skilled laborers and improved machinery, appears to be a solution."

"While the average Iowa farm is equipped with $1,449 worth of machinery and the average farm of the north and west carries about $1,300 worth, the cotton belt farm has but $215, and depends largely upon one-horse tools and hand labor."

DOLLAR DAY

ECHOES IN CITY

In speaking of the Dollar Day sales, Philip Cushman, manager of the Kafateria Shoe Store, said: "Our business was far better than I expected it would be because dollar day came just after we had closed two very successful shoe sales, and we did not expect a big run of business."

Mr. Ludwig, advertising director of Pendroy's Department Store, said: "Our business was very heavy. We certainly had about all we could handle all day."

Eugene Gordon: "I was too busy to eat my annual sale today. My third annual sale brought many new customers."

Joe Holzman, Glendale Dry Goods company: "Our business was very good. We gave the people some real bargains and they responded very liberally. We always give our customers good values and our business is increasing right along."

The above are only a few expressions from a few of the big merchants. Even the stores which did not display the Dollar Day signs did a good business.

THE PROBLEMS OF GENESIS ARE DISCUSSED

Dr. Robert A. Hadden gave another address at the Glendale Presbyterian church last evening. His general theme for the evening addresses is "Perplexing Problems in the Genesis Book." Last evening he spoke on "The Problem of Evil." He told clearly and graphically of the origin of evil among the angels long ages before man's creation. Sin began when angels rebelled against the dominion of God and as a result were cast out from his holy presence. This earth was created and lay long in chaos followed by a period of reconstruction. On the earth thus prepared man was created. The serpent Satan came and man succumbed to his wily blandishments.

Since that date Satan has given man no rest. He is tirelessly persistent in his efforts against God and his plans. He is always busy sowing seeds of discord and division among men. On one side is satanic opposition and on the other side is divine interposition.

Satan has been permitted to exercise a power that is all but omnipotent. Fifteen times in the Old Testament and fourteen times in the New Testament Satan seems to almost overcome Almighty God. For example in the Garden of Gethsemane the cry of bitter anguish which was wrung from the heart of Christ was not inspired by dread of the coming cross with its awful crucifixion. Christ had seen the cross from pristine ages of the world. But he was nigh unto death in sorrow because of the terrific onslaughts of Satan. He was crying to be delivered from death by Satan in Gethsemane. Had he died then there could have been no cross and no salvation.

Though the age long struggle between Satan and God waxed fiercer and fiercer nevertheless the Lord Christ will ultimately triumph. "For He must reign, till He hath put all enemies under his feet."

Dr. Hadden will speak again tonight and his subject will be "The Problem of the Flood." Was the flood justifiable? This is said to be one of the most interesting legends, dresses which Dr. Hadden gives. There will be no services tomorrow, but Dr. Hadden will speak at both morning and evening services on Sunday.

COOKER & TAYLOR TO HAVE LECTURE ON COOKING

"How to cook a whole meal in your own oven when you are miles away" will be the subject of Mrs. Taylor, student of Kate Brew Vaughn of the home economics department of the Los Angeles Express, at the cooking class conducted by Cooker & Taylor at their store, 209 South Brand, Saturday afternoon between the hours of 2 and 4.

Since starting six weeks ago the class has grown fast and much interest has been shown by the housewives of Glendale in the efforts of the firm to teach the science of cooking by temperatures. According to home economics experts every article of food must be cooked at a certain temperature to produce good results. Realizing this fact the inventor of the Loral gas range, of which Cooker & Taylor are sole agents for Glendale, devised an automatic regulator for its purpose.

BERT LYTELL AT THE GLENDALE THEATER TONIGHT

In "The Face Between," which comes to the Glendale theater tonight, Bert Lytell, the Metro star, has a part which adds to the laurels he has already won in such pictures as "The Right of Way," "The Right That Failed" and "The Idle Rich." "The Face Between" is based on a story by Justus Miles Forman, the scenario having been made by L. B. Coe. It is a Bayard Veiller production.

A son's sacrifice for his father who has become involved in an affair which threatens his reputation is the theme of this absorbing story. The son accepts responsibility for his father's wrongdoing and goes into exile, giving up the girl to whom he is engaged and everything else which makes life attractive to this rich young society man. During his banishment he becomes involved in numerous difficulties with the mountain people in the vicinity, and the resulting consequences make this picture one of continual suspense, full of dramatic thrills and interest from first reel to last.

ADAM AND EVA OPENS TONIGHT AT T. D. & L.

Creating a profound impression, Marion Davies' latest Cosmopolitan production, "Adam and Eva," has its premier at the T. D. & L. theater tonight. Robert G. Vignola directed.

Miss Davies, as Eva King, is the extravagant daughter of James King, owner of many rubber plantations. She is taken in tow by an energetic young man who succeeds admirably in keeping her in check, that is, until the trick which he has played on her has been discovered.

Then there is the mischief to pay. Eva leaves him flat, but remembering that he has done this all for her good, she returns and begs forgiveness.

This picture brings a new Marion Davies to the screen. Never before has she been quite so charming. Roy Barnes of "The Old Homestead" fame, plays the leading male role opposite Miss Davies. The love interest in this picture is appealing, and the laughs are many.

HELIUM GAS MAY BE MADE LIQUID

[By Associated Press]

TORONTO, Ont., March 16.—Professor John C. McClellan, of the University of Toronto, has discovered a process for liquefying helium gas. The new discovery, it is said, will open up big possibilities for the gas in the industrial field.

Helium is a non-combustible gas which is nearly as light as hydrogen gas and can be used as a substitute for it. Its principal use up to the present time has been as a filling for dirigible balloons and other lighter than air craft, because of its non-inflammability. Many air disasters due to the ignition of gas bags could have been avoided, it is said, if helium gas had been used.

In its new liquefied state helium will be particularly valuable in refrigeration, since its temperature reaches within one degree of absolute zero. This property of extreme temperature will also make the liquefied gas especially useful in scientific research, according to Professor McClellan.

The value of helium as a commercial product is enhanced by its comparative scarcity. The United States and Canada are the only countries in which it is found. During the war the United States took steps to extract and conserve its helium gas, and since the war it has prohibited its export from the country. Canada's source of helium is located at Bow Island, near Calgary, Alta. This field is said to be the largest in existence.

OBSERVATIONS

BY A GLENDALE OLD TIMER

The philosopher who said, "Let me write a nation's songs and I care not who writes her laws," evidently did not know the Irish. They defy all laws whether made by the English or by themselves, just for love of scrapping and contrariness. Yet their songs have a sad, appealing tenderness that one would think should inspire them with only thoughts of peace and love of home and wife or sweetheart. But, as we all know, the Irishman would rather fight than eat, whether with a shillalah, breaking heads, or with a gun, taking lives, as we saw so unhappily in Erin. All the world loves the Irish and many sincere prayers go up daily that peace with honor may soon come to that unhappy land. None but Scotch songs can compare in beauty of music and tenderness of words with those of Ireland. Certainly nothing sweeter than "Mother Machree," "Come Back to Erin," "Killarney," and "My Willie Irish Boy" was ever written and sung. And by the way, the play of the same name as the last-mentioned song and centering around it, is one of the most beautiful and touching that ever was filmed. And have you noticed that all Irish plays are pure, clean and fairly overflowing with beautiful sentiment? "Peg O' My Heart" is another screen play that appeals to every tender feeling of the human breast. God bless the Irish, say I, and may their sweet songs and the tender memories stirred by such beautiful plays as I have just mentioned, lead the contending factions now deluging the Emerald Isle with blood, to a speedy peace.

I was engaged in newspaper work in Monticello, Platt county, a few months during the year 1896, and while there became acquainted with Jim Smith, who had moved to that vicinity not long since from near Salem, Marion county, where he had spent all of his days up to that time. He was a boy in his teens during the Civil war and he well remembered the exciting times in that hotbed of Copperhead sentiment. He was well acquainted with Judge Bryan, father of William Jennings of that name and said the old gentleman was the hottest kind of a rebel sympathizer. Though a professing Christian and, in the main, a just judge, Smith said he was so convinced of the justice of the Southern cause and that the slave states were being coerced in defiance of the constitution, that he was outspoken in his treasonable utterances. On one occasion, Jim Smith told me, a young girl school teacher who tore a buttoned emblem (half of the shell of a butternut, very common in Illinois at that time, and adopted by the Copperheads as a distinguishing badge) from the coat of a man who sat down beside her in church, was arrested and taken before Judge Bryan, charged with disturbing the peace. She was a beautiful girl, daughter of a Union soldier then at the front, and she had many friends, even a few among the rabid secession sympathizers. To the astonishment and anger of the local people of the town Judge Bryan sentenced her to jail. But he went too far in this instance, for a number of Union soldiers who were home recovering from wounds, raised a party of loyal men who marched to the judge's home and so threatened him that he remitted the sentence and released the young lady. And in the county election which followed soon after this event, he was defeated. He was a man of lofty character in all other ways, I was told, and in the years following the close of the war he regained in a large measure the respect and confidence of all his neighbors.

From my very limited observation of screen plays I have come to at least one definite conclusion regarding the requirements for a movie actor of any capacity. He must be fitted for the part and be a good actor, also ready to undergo violent physical exertion if necessary and to face danger in critical situations. But above all and in all he must, yes, really must, be able to light and smoke a cigarette gracefully, incessantly and in any position. Other failings may be overlooked or condoned, but to fall down as a graceful, devil-may-care, nonchalant, insouciant cigarette wielder, he must be without a flaw. All cigarette smokers are not actors, but all actors must be cigarette smokers seems to be the creed of filmland.

In a former article I mentioned some of the popular songs of Civil war times, but there were others of later dates that were very popular for a time, then dropped into oblivion. They were heard first in popular plays, then boys in the streets began to whistle them, men in offices and at home would hum them and young ladies would sing them at evening gatherings. Among these old songs I remember as very popular at times during the past forty years or more are "Sweet Violets," "Only a Pansy Blossom," "Sweetest Bunch of Lilies," "After the Ball," "Sweet Marie," "Comrades," "Two Little Girls in Blue," "Maggie Murphy's Home," "She's a Plain Molly O," "Killarney," and hosts of others. In "Third Alarm," shown recently in Glendale I recognized strains of Felix McGlenon's "Comrades" many times in the pipe organ accompaniments and it was like an echo from the forgotten past. "Sweet Marie" was very popular in its day, the air, particularly for the words, written by Cy Warman, author of many railroad stories, are rather uncouth. Chas. K. Harris' "After the Ball" and other songs struck a very popular chord when brought out and they were sung almost universally. When I heard the wonderfully beautiful Irish song, "Killarney," and his roughish "Peek-a-boo," a little thought that this gifted genius of song would end his days in a madhouse. But of all the singers of their own compositions I was fortunate enough to hear, I think J. K. Emmet appealed most to me. His acting and singing were so natural that his hearers seemed at one with him in intimate home life. His "Cuckoo Song," with its haunting suggestion of sweet woodland scenes and its wonderful yodel, brought pleasure to thousands of eager hearers, and surely no song ever written touched the heart strings so closely as his "Go to Sleep Lena," with its soft, swaying melody and dreamy yodel. I think I enjoyed his singing of this more than any other music I ever heard.

A few weeks ago the city council decreed that no more extensions of time on street work contracts should be granted in the future. And just to show that this action was not a bluff, one contractor was granted an extension of 60 days, at last week's meeting and another was allowed 30 days' extension at the preceding meeting. Let us be firm, gentlemen.

In 1907 Harlan A. Page was offered the lot on which the Glendale theatre now stands and one adjoining it, both for $1750. Would $50,000 buy them today, even without the buildings on them? In 1913 the lot at the southwest corner of Brand and Harvard was offered for $3500. At about the same time the lot just south of the telephone building was offered for $2200 and the 150X150 feet at the southwest corner of Colorado and Brand for $4000. I understand this latter site is now worth in the neighborhood of $100,000. Some growth in values, eh?

Why do some cities grow marvelously while others, apparently better located, languish and die, or merely exist. Why should Chicago, founded as it was in 1803 as a fort, in the midst of a rice swamp at the mouth of the sluggish river of the same name, grow to a mighty city? A more unpromising location could hardly have been chosen on Lake Michigan's shores. Cincinnati started as a fort along about 1790 and there was nothing in its location to lead to a belief that it would one day be a great city, any more than other towns along the Ohio river. And who could have imagined a hundred years ago, that the little pueblo of Los Angeles, nestling at the base of tree-crowned hills and 22 miles distant from San Pedro, the natural harbor city, would, in less than a century, spread out to cover these seemingly inaccessible hills and the valleys between them, for many square miles? St. Louis was a French trading post on the bluffs bordering the Mississippi, located there by chance. One would have thought that Cairo, Illinois, situated right at the point where the Ohio river, just after its waters had been largely augmented by the mighty flow of the Wabash, joined the Father of Waters, would be the strategic point for a great city. It was at too low a level, was the objection, but the same and more could be said of New Orleans, which is actually below the level of true Mississippi places, and at an average of an river in its overflows, only the immense levees, protecting it, yet New Orleans has grown to many times Cairo's size. We cannot give any reason for these strange anomalies. We can only accept the fact that they are.

About 30 to 40 years ago, in the little Illinois city where I lived, it was the rule of builders that an ordinary frame residence could be erected at a cost of $125 a room. The price now is nearer $1000 a room. And then they built houses to last for a hundred years if necessary.

I sincerely trust that Police Chief Fraser was misquoted in the statement attributed to him that he had instructed policemen to disregard certain city ordinances and state laws in making arrests. The reference being particularly to traffic laws. If it makes Glendale popular with visitors to allow them to violate certain laws with impunity, then, in my estimation, they are not the class of visitors that a city should want. It is a mighty dangerous precedent to set, for any public official to say what laws shall and shall not be enforced. That, carried to a logical sequel, breeds anarchy of the worst type. Large cities have brought reproach upon themselves by allowing public officials to nullify or suspend action on certain laws, at their pleasure, and I sincerely hope Glendale will never follow this vicious example.

Wednesday's high wind reminded me that never since November, 1911, has there been a storm of that character of such long duration. For three days, then, the wind blew violently and there were few and very short intermissions between the blasts. The clouds of dust were much more dense and wide-spread than is possible now, as few of the streets were paved then. I was reminded of an Illinois autumn when quite often in November the wind howls through the bare branches of the forest trees.

"I owe you a matter of $50," said a man as his long suffering tailor. "That is so," the tailor replied. This sum has been owing for a year or more," inquired the purchaser. "Quite correct," was the reply. "And you have sent me five postal cards referring to this debt," continued the man. "Now I have brought you two dozen 2-cent stamps, which I propose to leave with you. Don't bother about a receipt. I must protect my honor. Will you, therefore, save your postcards and my reputation by sending a statement of my account in a sealed envelope—for the next 12 months? Good morning."

Truths in Epigram

The world—a conventional phrase, which, being interpreted, often signifies all the rascals in it.—Dickens.

A good deed done is nothing less than an endless series of good deeds set in motion.—Elmo.

It is better to be a child in a green field than a knight of many orders in a state ceremonial.—George MacDonald.

FOR OUTLAWING WAR

Captain Rickenbacker, himself a former soldier, his career known for courage and remarkable achievement, hates war. He believes it to be wicked and unnecessary. Addressing a body of young students he said:

"There is no reason for war. I wonder why they should legalize warfare; why they should pass laws about the way in which men and women of this universe should be murdered."

August Thyssen, coal king of Germany, held a dream now temporarily shattered, of a Europe at peace. He wanted Europe to develop on the scale of America. His idea is that only the quarrels of continental nations prevent this progress. He believes still that ultimately self interest will cause the peoples to unite for the common good, war having disappeared.

The American soldier and the German financier were moved by a similar thought. That thought was of the uselessness, the folly and the brutality and wastefulness of war.

There is a proposition for the United States to lend its support to the International Court of Justice. The design of this tribunal is to end war. It hopes to do so by removing the causes that are employed as pretexts for setting armed hosts to the task of butchery and destruction. Against this proposition there is noisy protest. It is founded on the theory that what Europe may do is not the concern of the United States. The opponents believe that America may prosper while European civilization, harried and hostile, sinks into decay.

If war is to be outlawed every considerable national power must enter into the plan. To keep the United States from participation, is to cripple the project, and to leave war the only method of arriving at the settlement of disputes. Captain Rickenbacker, whether or not aware, was speaking on behalf of an International Court of Justice. The same is true of the German magnate. The goal they have in mind is to be reached only by concerted action. The power that holds aloof could do so only to the encouragement of war, and its gesture would be a rebuff to the hope of a bloodless and just method of adjustment.

RUSSIA FIGHTS LIQUOR

It is said that the bolshevik regime is engaged in fighting the liquor traffic. Being a dictatorship it has many advantages if it desires to wage a war of this kind. Such laws as it may choose to enforce become absolute. That there should be an effort to keep the natives sober is natural enough. Moreover, if there is any profit in the liquor business, the men now at the head of affairs are not of a type to be pleased to have it going into other hands than their own. However, the bolsheviks are welcome to all the credit they deserve as promoters of sobriety. In commenting on the matter, there could be no occasion to launch into an encomium on Russian policies in general. This was the course taken by a string of papers printed in America.

"The Russian government has been occupied for so many years in fighting the world which snarled around its borders, including to our shame, the United States," etc., etc., remarks the editorial devotee of Lenine, the quoted phrase being sufficient to show the tenor of the screed. Nothing could be more patently untrue or un-American.

Russia virtually had declared war on all civilization. It was the avowed enemy of organized government as recognized by the rest of the world. It spent money in fomenting discontent in other lands, to the end that bloody revolution might follow, and prosperous peoples be dragged down to its own level. Its attitude was such that respectable nations could have dealings with it only under restrictions. One requirement was that Russia pledge itself to cease the spread of communist propaganda. It gave the pledge, but never kept it.

If Russia can and does actually abate the liquor trade, that will be its first accomplishment on behalf of the millions in the clutches of the oligarchy. As a so-called government it has been the most ghastly of national failures.

SWEEP BY TEMPESTS

Another of the dreaded windstorms has swept parts of the east and middle west. Termed a blizzard in some accounts, it seems to have had all the fierceness of the tornado, and some of the characteristics of the cyclone. Destruction marked its path, and many lives were lost as it hurtled on its way, battering down the obstacles that it interposed.

There have been hints that science had hope of one day controlling the elements, at least to an extent preventing the outbursts of fury that result in such damage. By most people the possibility never has been considered as other than a dream. "The wind bloweth whither it listeth" seems as true now as in the days of the prophets of old.

Early settlers of the middle west were not fearful of windstorms. These violent manifestations seem due to causes that have arisen since. In the early eighties storms, ordinarily recorded as cyclones, began to be manifest. In 1882 one struck the little town of Grinnell, Iowa, killing some two score, and utterly wrecking a large section. From that date to the present, storms of the same kind have not been uncommon. They come with absolute suddenness, although arising from atmospheric conditions now recognized as menacing. When they do come there is no strength of masonry or timber directly exposed, that is able to resist.

IN A PROSPEROUS LAND

Incident to a meeting of county supervisors at Sacramento, some interesting facts concerning the south of the state were set forth. They were most significant, and yet it is doubtful that the residents of the section are fully aware of them. In many cities people are beginning to adopt as a slogan and a rule of conduct, "Know your own town." This excellent rule well might be extended to know one's own state, when there is so much in such knowledge to stir the pride, becomes a pleasure.

The agricultural products of Los Angeles county equal in value those of any county in the United States. In this county is Los Angeles, a place of unprecedented growth, still going forward at full speed with no prospect of being checked. Farm property in the six southern counties amounted to $433,000,000 in 1910. Ten years later it had more than doubled. The increase since the latter date has been at a rate never before attained. One county, that of San Diego, is the largest geographical division of similar class in the United States. All the counties immediately adjacent to that of Los Angeles partake of the ruling prosperity, contribute to it, and are part of it.

When are considered the wealth and the beauty of a region situated in the shadow of the mountains, yet touching the sea; its varied products, its mighty enterprises, it is no wonder that southern California is glad and proud. It is strange, though, that the people are not more fully aware of the advantages that are theirs, and that have caused their habitat to be the white spot of the financial map.

You can always have what you want by wanting modestly.

Beards Versus Matrimony

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

If one visited privately all the members of all the school boards in the land and all persons who are serving on mission boards and asked them privately whether or not they believed young people should marry, they'd all answer "YES."

They'd emphasize the affirmative and glare at you for suspecting that they might harbor leanings toward free love or polygamy or something else unorthodox and terrible.

But get the members together officially and see what they do to inculcate in youth a reverence for the holy estate of matrimony.

Last week the regents of a certain great university forbade married students to attend the student dances. A few young couples attending the university had quietly married and the action brought on them this petty punishment. Incidentally, the petty punishment cast a slur on marriage.

For why should students be punished for marrying? Boards behave as if it were a disgrace for husband and wife to study together. The idea is silly and archaic and it injures educational institutions and interferes too often with matings at a time when the young having found their mates, need the inspiration of companionship and serious purpose as a spur to study.

What is more, is not any dance better for the presence of a few married couples? Why exclude them as if they were criminals? The implication is insulting.

A few days after the university board took its revenge on the boys and girls who had had the temerity to marry during their student days the board of the Inland South American Mission Union stood between a devoted young missionary and his chosen bride. Arthur F. Tylee, a graduate of Amherst and Harvard, offered his services to go and work among the lepers of South America. He is betrothed to Ethel M. Canary of Memphis, Tenn., and she wishes to accompany him as his wife.

Everybody who knows anything about the tropics knows that there more than elsewhere men are circled by temptations peculiar to the flesh. Moreover, mission work in a foreign land is a lonely and hazardous undertaking and nothing can take the place of marriage in reducing its dangers and its isolation.

Yet by the rules of this board this pair of lovers can not marry for two years. He must go to one country; she to another; but they may not marry and go together to the work both have selected.

Why? That is a fair question. Church people denounce the licentiousness that results in divorce and yet just such rules both the church and the educators reflect on marriage and discourage it.

It's just as well, when wondering why we are a matrimonially irresponsible nation to look at the way some of those who complain of the fact behave toward marriage.

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

"I'll" and "we'll": Do you realize that when you say "I'll" or "we'll" you are really saying "I will" or "we will," and that when you use "I'd" or "we'd" it is really "I would" or "we would" that you are expressing?

Let us consider the first two contractions. "I'll" and "we'll" are equivalent to "I will" and "we will," which are in turn equivalent to "I am determined to" or "we are determined to." Therefore, when you say "I'll do it" (I will do it), you are saying "I am determined to do it," and the same reasoning applies to "we'll do it."

If you hear this analysis in mind when you are determining whether or not to use "I'll" or "we'll," you will have no further difficulty. But remember that these contractions are colloquial expressions; i. e., they are expressions that have been adopted by popular and hurried speech and writing, and are not representative of carefully constructed English.

"I'd" and "we'd," the second two contractions, mean "I would" and "we would," are explained in a similar manner, would being merely the past of will.

When you remark, "I said I'd do it," you are implying that what you said some time in the past was, "I will do it." If in another sentence you do not wish to imply determination, then do not use "would," use "should," as, "I said I should like to have you come."

Never say "I'd like," "we'd like," "I'd want," "we'd want." I'd appreciate, we'd appreciate (even if you are determined to be colloquial and form contractions). Why? Because you would not say "I will like, I will appreciate, I will want, I will like, we will want, we will appreciate, we will want." I am determined to want, "I will want" (I am determined to want); not does it sound well to say, "I said I would want", or, "I said I'd want."

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

Many years ago a number of men sought the presence of a king.
A king who was a ruler.
A king whose mandate was the law.

Kings of that sort are out of date now.
But in those days they were the fashion.

It was a dangerous thing to oppose a king.
Because a king cut off heads with little compunction.

He had armies whose duty it was to enforce his will.
And they did that duty fairly well.

Force was the thing that ruled.
So to oppose the king successfully one needed more force than the king had at his disposal.

And that was hard to get.
Armies had to be levied and trained and clothed and fed.

And that was something beyond the power of the ordinary individual or even the extraordinary individual.

But in the particular instance of which we speak, a number of men sought the presence of the king.

They were brave men and powerful men and they could have raised a considerable army themselves.

And they told the king in pretty plain terms that his absolutism was over.

They said that they all had rights apart from the king's whim and will.
And they intended to have them.
So they laid down a declaration of rights.
And told the king it would be well for him to treat his subjects as men.

To treat his neighbor with respect and things like that.

Observe necessary laws.
And then you can think and act and speak as you choose.

Provided always you do not interfere with the right of your neighbor to do the same.

Constitutionalism is an agreement by which a declaration of agreed rights is bigger than a king.
It is a document that a ruler cannot set aside at will.

Neither can a minister of a cabinet or a court set it aside.
It is above and beyond all of these.

It is the agreement of the people of a nation to guarantee the rights of individuals.
Constitutionalism protects you.
It guarantees your individual rights.
It guarantees your safety in the pursuit of your occupation.

It permits you to go about your business without let or hindrance.
All constitutionalism asks is that you obey the laws.
Do not make yourself a nuisance or a crime doer or a disturber.

All it asks is that you mind your own lawful business.
Treat your neighbor with respect and things like that.

Observe necessary laws.
And then you can think and act and speak as you choose.

Provided always you do not interfere with the right of your neighbor to do the same.

If he gave assent to them.
And the king thought it over.
And signed.

The king did it not because he wanted to.
Not because he had any desire to see human rights defended.

But he did it to save his own kingly skin.
And however it was done, it was done.
And from that action of the king and of the knights and nobles has developed free government.

That was what we might call constitutionalism.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

The Michigan girl who seemed to have a temperature ranging as high as 115, has been exposed as a deliberate faker. By a cunning trick she had caused the clinical thermometer to come into contact with a hot water bottle. The instrument recorded the temperature of the bottle.

It is but fair to say that intelligent observers believed all the time that fraud was being practiced. But it seemed so aimless a fraud, that this deepened the mystery. Moreover, variations from rule must be recognized. There are such freaks in every realm of human activity, that to pronounce anything impossible, because it is unusual and seems to have no precedent, really savors of presumption. Besides, discovery of the trick belonged to the doctor.

When the body shows a temperature of 106, death is believed to be inevitable and near. This point has been reached without fatality ensuing. At least some authorities so declare. So when the girl sent the mercury up to 115, her condition was regarded as remarkable; and so it was, even if she was acting.

Doubtless the conduct of the patient was a mere manifestation of hysteria. The forms in which hysteria expresses itself are many and strange. One case will be marked by the pretense of blindness. Another will claim paralysis of the limbs. There are any number of ways to be hysterical. But why indulge in any of them? A form of insanity, the desire to be the center of interest. Better ask the doctor if curious on the subject.

A muscular person came all the way from Buenos Aires in order to fight another about equally muscular, and probably with similar brain development. The South American won, putting the North American into deep sleep in the twelfth round of the scheduled fifteen. The victor now has the opportunity to meet the heavyweight champion, and if victor on that occasion, to carry the championship away with him. How very sad this would be!

Italy appears to be satisfied with the terms acceptable to Turkey. Yet Italy would be ready to fight Turkey if the terms prove unsatisfactory to England, and the latter elects to go to war about it.

This word does not come directly from Mussolini, however. Perhaps he will decline to send an army forth to gather hot chestnuts even for so admirable a neighbor as England.

Probably Mr. Edison will be surprised to find that he has descended from a distinguished Mexican line, even from a king bearing the name of Itz'Xochitl. The people down there have supplied him with a noble family tree. The chances are that he will not take the trouble to find whether his forebears ever planted the same. Edison first recognized himself as a peanut butcher on a train in the United States. He rose to other and more important stations. He is a genius, and doubtless deserves to be regarded as an American from 'way back.

The Los Angeles police shot a young burglar the other night. He died at the station while profanely defying God and man. Any fool might have done that.

In these days of robberies it continues to be a singular evidence of human weakness that people will expose themselves to being plundered, invite the bandit to come and help himself, and yet feel aggrieved, or even surprised at acceptance of the invitation. Not long ago a Los Angeles woman was out at night unaccompanied, and wearing $40,000 worth of jewels. They were taken away from her, of course. What else could she have expected?

Some speculation has arisen as to the effect upon the social standing of folk if detected as patrons of the bootlegger.

Probably none whatever. The friends who had helped direct the bootlegged stuff knew well enough where it came from. They are no better than their hosts.

They have horse races at Tia Juana. At least they have certain contests upon the outcome of which it is possible to bet. The possibility of winning, is, of course, more remote.

Recently a young man went to the place carrying with him $1100. This he played with the bookies. That was the last he saw of it. Perhaps he had a return ticket, for he managed to get home, where, having thought the matter over, he turned on the gas, and the coroner took official charge.

Only a simple episode of sporting life.

Mexico proposes to build the largest irrigation project on this continent. Doses equal to ten millions of American money are to be expended on the enterprise. Nearly a million and a quarter acres thus will be brought under cultivation.

Mexico would like to be recognized by this government. There appears to be some obstacle of which citizens generally are not aware. They have noted the new life that Oregon has instilled into all Mexico, and they would be glad to see the obstacles removed.

Meanwhile occasional mention is made of the possibility of recognizing Russia, while still ignoring the rights of Mexico to recognition. Probably this is beyond any official absurdity that ever will be reached. Russia is not a government and Mexico is.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

May a kind heaven preserve me from living in a dirty house. Even in a house that is not well kept. The wives of some of my friends would perish in flame if they suspected that I thought they were not good housekeepers. Yet I know perfectly well that the dishes stand in the sink while they go to the movies. But the next worse house than the dusty, feathery, up-put-away sort of house is the house that is too well kept.

The reason why poor old Tommy Thompson sagged off to the bad was that his wife actually housekept him into revolt.

The Thompsons' house was like the House Beautiful you sometimes see in department stores. Every chair in its place, every rug just-so, every cushion plumped up and fat. You felt there should be a rope stretched from higher to yon, so that guests might not sit in the seats. If you moved a chair off its own personal parallel Mrs. Thompson shuddered internally. That hurt her, just like the saxophone does some people. Tommy was not allowed to walk up and down. He was too apt to kick the rugs out of place. He could not cross one knee over the other and twitter the dependent foot. He was compelled to read by a lamp that was exquisite to the last pang, but gave about the same illumination one can extort from a feeble-minded firefly.

It may be, as Mrs. Pilgrim says, that he is the sort of husband who should be kept in the barn. Even so, as the provider for the establishment, I am old-fashioned enough to think he should have something to say about it. He is a pretty decent citizen at bottom, as I know, and I know him well. It may be that if he were not watched he would wear purple waistcoats and red ties, and it is true that when he is happy he acts that way, being of a gusty and tempestuous disposition. But he never gave Mrs. Tommy any cause to complain.

That is, he didn't until she house-kept him away from home.

When 4,000,000 soldiers were vaccinated for smallpox, only one named for the spot of death was charged to.

Recognition of Russia is freely extended by the Hearst papers. Otherwise there seems to be nothing doing.

President Obregon of Mexico inaugurates one of the biggest of irrigation schemes. His enterprise deserves recognition anyhow.

BABSON BULLISH ON THE SOUTH

LAKE WALES, Florida, March 16, 1923.—During the past two weeks Roger W. Babson has been travelling through the south, continuing his study of business conditions. He is now in Florida and today releases a statement on conditions.

"I am very bullish on the south for the long pull," says Mr. Babson. "Alabama may become the greatest industrial state in America, and Florida may become the great agricultural state. The south has all the basic natural resources—climate, phosphates, fuel, water power and shipping facilities. All the south needs is more 'vision' and more of that indescribable something which makes things go. Moreover, the south is fast getting that vision. Every southern city and every southern state is evidence of this fact. The south is waking up and the north and west must look out or they will some day be out-classed both industrially and agriculturally."

"It was only a few years ago that cotton mills were built in the south. Today some of the finest mills in the world are in Georgia, the Carolinas and Texas. Moreover, the workers in these mills are a splendid group of sturdy Americans of whom we all may well be proud. But the industrial south is not dependent upon cotton mills. Iron and steel plants, great chemical plants, mills and factories of all kinds are now found in this section. New factories—stimulated partly by the increase in railroad freight rates—are springing up every day in Alabama, Louisiana, Georgia, the Carolinas and Mississippi. Considering its strategic location for Latin American export trade and its nearness to the center of population in the United States, the south is bound to grow industrially."

"As I explained when discussing a certain section of the west, the wheat grower is up against the difficulty that as a nation becomes more prosperous it consumes less wheat per capita. The reverse, however, is true of cotton, sugar, fruits, nuts and most of the other products which are raised in the south. As people become more prosperous they use more cotton, eat more sugar, fruit, nuts and the like. Hence, the south is sure to prosper agriculturally as it has sunshine, rain and phosphate as well as seaports, railroads, fuel and every natural advantage."

"Figuring the cotton crop as a whole, it will bring the growers 50 or 60 per cent more money than last year. This means not only a gain in actual purchasing power, but a marked change in sentiment. The cotton states will have the means to buy and will be in a mood to buy. From present indications the localities to watch are Georgia and South Carolina. In these states weevil damage may be rather serious. The following list is based upon an estimate of the leading crops and the probable seasons' prices as compared with last year:

ITALIANS WHO FOUGHT FOR NATIVE LAND IN WORLD WAR RETURN TO LAND OF ADOPTION

More than 1500 Italian reservists who left their homes in America to join the colors at the outbreak of the war returned recently on board the same steamship. Many of these veterans participated in the Fascist movement in their homeland and now come back to live again in America. The photograph shows some of the reservists on deck as the steamship approached her pier in New York.

"There is no question," continued Mr. Babson, "that the weevil is a serious problem and that its ravages have steadily increased, both in area affected and amount of damage. The alarm is not without some foundation and it may be a good thing to get people waked up. The potato bug has been controlled in Maine, and the cotton weevil can be controlled in the south. As long as cotton is treated like a weed, as long as the crop is left largely in the hands of shiftless tenants, the weevil will win. What the south needs is greater efficiency. In other words, the agricultural experts and the better class of growers are able to deal with the weevil, but they cannot handle the job alone. They cannot make up for the laziness and stupidity of the shiftless."

"There are several optimistic factors in the outlook. (1) Excellent work in research and education is being accomplished by the United States department of agriculture supported by farm journals and local papers. (2) There is a tendency toward cooperation, and one of the by-products of this movement should be to raise the general level of intelligence and energy among the growers. (3) The continued development of the southern textile industry will create an influential class who are directly interested in improved methods of growing. (4) The further progress of diversified farming and animal husbandry will tend to shift cotton growing into stronger hands."

Mr. Babson is also very enthusiastic as to the commercial future of the south. Norfolk, Wilmington, Charleston, Savannah, Brunswick, Jacksonville, Tampa, Pensacola and others have—in his opinion—an opportunity almost equaling that of New Orleans, if the men of these cities would only show the faith and energy of the people of New Orleans.

"Those who have confidence in the future of New Orleans," continues the statistician, "as a field for business expansion, will be interested in the statistics of commerce for the fiscal year, 1922. According to figures compiled by the shipping board, New Orleans ranks second only to New York, both in tonnage cleared and tonnage cleared. This record is particularly gratifying in view of the great effort which the city has made to improve its port facilities."

"During the war period, general business in New Orleans made tremendous strides. Of course, some of this advance was canceled by the 1920-1921 slump; but even at the worst stages of the reaction, business was more than double that of pre-war days. The upward trend has now been resumed and I forecast that during 1923 local business will run 20 per cent or more over a year ago. The immediate outlook, therefore, is fairly good; and for the long pull, I recommend this city to those who are considering southern locations."

"When considering southern seaports, do not overlook Mobile. This city is on the upward trend, both for the current cycle and the long pull. At a recent state election,

Alabama voted a majority of over 75,000 to lend the state's credit up to, but not exceeding $10,000,000 for improvements for the port of Mobile. Galveston, Texas, is also making great strides. Foreign trade figures show this city to be near the top.

"A number of things seen in the south," concluded Mr. Babson, "have attracted my attention. Among them is the reforestation which certain of the big lumber companies—such as the Great Southern Lumber company at Bogalusa, Louisiana—are undertaking. We have been taught to believe that lumbering is only of temporary benefit to a section; but this need not be so. If these experiments in reforestation are successful, lumber and pulp will be permanent products of the south. In the north such reforestation may be impractical commercially, owing to slow growth, but in the south, with the heavy rains and warm weather reforestation may be commercially profitable. If so, the time may come when all of our newspapers may be printed upon paper made from southern pulp. A number of experiments in other lines are now in process which if successful will add great wealth to the south. The experiments with grapes in Florida, the possibility of striking oil in certain states where none has yet been found are merely illustrations of the latent wealth of these wonderful states. Then there is the beautiful climate of winter which is not only a great agricultural asset, but an industrial and commercial asset as well. Moreover, wages will always be less in the south than in the north owing to a lower cost of living and a lower cost of doing business. For the same wage most people had much rather live and work in the south. Only higher wages in the north can keep people there. The same air and sunshine which causes the millionaires to seek southern climes is causing wage workers and others to do likewise. Moreover, it is doing no harm to have these millionaires come down here. It opens their eyes to the opportunities of the south and will make it much easier in years to come for the south to get that capital which it has always so much needed. So I say to all America: 'Watch the south grow.'"

General business as reflected by the index of the Babsonchart is running at a new high of 5 per cent above normal.

FRENCH STYLES UNPOPULAR IN BERLIN

[By Associated Press]

BERLIN, March 16.—Frieda and Gretchen are to have no more Paris gowns. There are to be no more smart little hats brought to Germany from the fashionable millinery shops on the Place Vendôme and the Rue de la Paix.

These articles are not permitted to cross the German boundary since the French invasion of the Ruhr, and the leaders of the German fashion industries have instructed their buyers that French models are not to be bought either directly or indirectly.

High prices in France had prevented German firms from buying many models. Consequently the importation of such finery from France had been inconsiderable as compared to pre-war times. But the Berlin modistes were slowly resuming their Paris trips and buying limited quantities of late creations, when the Ruhr trouble came along and brought the general boycott against articles made in France.

Baron Drecoll, managing director of one of Berlin's greatest fashion shops, told the correspondent of The Associated Press that the latest prohibition will make little difference to Berlin designers, since they have not relied directly on Paris for their styles since the beginning of the war and have, to a great extent, become creators of their own models.

"Of course, many of our ideas come from Paris. It is foolish to deny that Paris leads in the creation of models," declared the Baron. "But Germany has learned to develop Parisian suggestions and adapt them. In many cases they are greatly modified, as Parisian designs are often too extreme for our taste. The prohibition against the importation of French goods will affect modistes and milliners only in two lines, silk and flowers. It is difficult to replace certain French silks and flowers."

Vienna and Berlin have been working together in the development of models since the beginning of the world war. Because of the low exchange they have been successful in developing a considerable trade for model gowns in the Scandinavian countries, the Balkans and Central Europe. American and French fashion magazines have been the source of many ideas for the German and Austrian fashion creators. They also send their representatives to the great watering places on the Riviera and have little difficulty in keeping up with the latest French ideas. In Berlin virtually all French

PASS THEM ALONG

Pass it along, Brother, pass it along: Not for you only, the smile and the song: Down on your head if the blessings come down. Many there are on whom fortune may frown. Let's not be grasping and selfish and small. For in the world there is treasure for all. If there is need, let us right what is wrong. Pass it along, Brother, pass it along.

Don't think that gladness is for you alone. Don't think that blessing is quite all your own: Good is for sharing and joy is to give. Let's help some need every day that we live. Fortune be yours, Brother, good luck your lot. Blessings be added to those you have got. Yours be the sunshine and smile and the song. And then pass them along, Brother, pass them along.

Fine though it be that you know how to get, Learn how to give—you'll be happier yet. No good so little but some you can spare. No joy so small but it grows if you share. Lucky to your plans, Brother, peace to your days, Happy your dreams, Brother, pleasant your ways, Treasure the smile, Brother, help sing the song, And then pass them along, Brother, pass them along.

OLD CONVICTS MODEL GUESTS

SAN JOSE, Calif., March 16.—A book on prison etiquette should be published for the perusal of amateur convicts, in the opinion of Sheriff George Lyle here. The more matured prisoners, he said, seldom make any fuss; but it is the young ones, those who have been in prison only four or five times, that prove obstreperous.

"Ex-convicts as a rule are model prisoners," he added, mentioning one who had spent thirty years, off and on, behind the bars and who was exceedingly well-bred and tractable. "Every time he comes in we make him a trusty, and he would no more think of running away than cutting off his arm."

"The new ones only are fastidious. They don't like this and they don't like that. The cells are too hot or too cold, or the meat is too tough or the bread too stale. We give them the best that we have to give, but our best won't satisfy them."

TOO MANY CIPHERS

BERLIN (United Press).—The Vorische Zeitung, leading a movement to drop the two last ciphers from German money, now prints the stock exchange quotations according to that method. Instead of quoting a stock at 63.50, the paper quotes 635.

TEN MILE ROOF OVER CHICAGO RIVER IS PLAN

CHICAGO, March 16 (United Press).—A ten mile roof over the Chicago river to carry boulevards, parks, garages and oil filling stations was proposed today as the solution of Chicago's traffic problem.

Engineers who planned the project estimated it would cost $2,500,000 a mile. Angus Hibbard, consulting engineer, said the cost of plan was less than that of any other yet proposed for the removal of traffic congestion in the business section.

If the plan is adopted and the city consents to pay the price, it will be provided eventually with ten miles of over-river roadway. Branches of the Chicago river run along both the west and north sides of the business section. It is planned to bridge the north branch for a distance of two miles as the first step in the building of the over-river boulevard. Later as traffic problems increase, the roof will be extended to join the main surface boulevards which act as the main traffic arteries between the north and south sides.

"The next cheapest plan, the bridging of South Water st. would cost at least $12,000,000 a mile," Hibbard said.

"It will make of the little used Chicago river a spacious boulevard."

The plan would not interfere with the operation of water traffic as the boulevard would be stretched twenty or thirty feet above the surface of the water.

Specifications call for a roof two hundred feet wide, of nine inch concrete, supported on concrete piling sunk into the bed of the river.

On the roof will run two sidewalks, fifteen feet wide, two boulevards, fifty feet wide and a vacant space in the center seventy-five feet wide.

Backers of the plan propose to put garages, parks and oil filling stations in the central space, and also provide long spaces for parking cars.

CHICAGO HAS NORMAL WINTER

CHICAGO, March 16.—Winter in Chicago up to March 1 was the exact normal winter average for the city, 27.5 degrees, determined by observations over a fifty-year period, according to Henry J. Cox, federal meteorologist. December was slightly below normal, January considerably above, and February considerably below.

Chicago has had but five days with temperature below zero, one in December and four in February, the records show. The lowest was eight below on February 4.

Precipitation was considerably below normal, and snow fall was but 14.8 inches, compared with a normal of 26.1 inches.
